Darryl says: He likes Latrell Knight's "Whiskey Party" on Brathan Music

Tori says: WZZA Radio joined FAME Recording Studio this weekend as they celebrated sixty-five years of FAME. The impressive line-up of artists included internationally known players and some of the best songs ever recorded. WZZA set up our tent and had our t-shirts and had products from one of our favorite advertisers, the world famous "Viese Grease" on hand. After a day of enjoying the music, eating barbeque, and socializing with and supporting other vendors, we packed up our tent so we could roll over to the Orion Amphitheater for the second part of the day, an electrifying concert by the FAME Gang and Muscle Shoals Musicians including the legendary Spooner Oldham, Mickey Buckens, Wayne Chaney, and so many others. Steve Jordan, the brother who is now the drummer for the Rolling Stones, was the music director. Bettye LaVette, still singing after sixty years and who was inducted into the Blues Hall of Fame, strutted her stuff. This was my first time seeing Robert Randolph, who plays the hell out of steel guitar and did a tribute to Wilson Picket that was phenomenal. The show ended with a dynamic new duo, the grammy award nominated War and Treaty, who blew the stage up. Stay tuned for them Kudos to FAME! Tori
